

ABSTRACT

A system and method for distributing guaranteed bandwidth among service groups in a network node are described. A position on a time scale of a buffer containing multiple data units is determined. A signal prompting selection of said buffer for release of at least one data unit of the data units is modified based on the position determined on the time scale.